Propylon Launches New Websites

Harrisburg, PA – July 12, 2007 -- Propylon, the world leader in legislative business solutions, announced the launch of three new websites today, as part of a continuing effort to communicate effectively with an ever-growing global market. Located at www.Propylon.com, www.PropylonConsulting.com, and www.PropylonCareers.com, the sites each share a user-friendly interface, but feature targeted content and information relevant to the respective site's audience.

“When Propylon was a smaller company, our website fulfilled a smaller communication need,” observed Propylon's CEO, Paul McKeon. “Today, we have multiple business units on two continents, offering a variety of products and services, to a client base comprised of some of the most respected names in lawmaking, publishing and public agency. An expanded web presence reflects Propylon's momentum and growth as a technology leader.”

www.Propylon.com speaks to legislative and parliamentary markets, and will include resources and news for the American legislative community. The site will allow Propylon's technology teams to efficiently update the public on the latest features and developments to the company's premiere software suite, Legislative Workbench™.

www.PropylonConsulting.com focuses on Propylon's European consulting and professional services operations.

www.PropylonCareers.com was created to address the unique recruiting needs faced by a growing technology company, and allows candidates to get straight to the latest job listings and company news.

“By streamlining our current website, and creating new, distinct Internet spaces for each of Propylon's constituencies, we intend to save time for our clients, industry associates and prospective employees,” explained Tracy Gamble, Marketing Communications Manager. “A commercial website should be a snapshot of the company itself. We believe that a clean, intuitive interface supported by a robust and flexible infrastructure gives web visitors an accurate preview of the Propylon client experience.”

Propylon was established in 1999 and is a world leader in lawmaking software. The company's solutions support legislatures and parliaments with workflow improvement, bill drafting, chamber business management, and publications. Clients include the Pennsylvania General Assembly, the Oregon State Legislature, the Kansas Legislature and the Irish National Parliament.
